

cracking ice

by Mia Colabella

The thrill you get when stepping on cracking ice

Is addictive

Much like the feeling of cheating death

And the feeling of control

But with every crack

It becomes control of life and death

And control of how you choose to live or die

But stepping on cracking ice

Is temporary

fading

And with every step you take

The loss of control is provoking

And the feeling of stepping on cracking ice

Is no longer cheating death

It is provoking it

Creative Contest Sponsored by ArtFul Visual Arts Initiative

The logo for ArtFul Visual Arts Initiative features the word "artful" in a stylized font. The letters "a", "r", "t", and "l" are blue, while the letters "f" and "u" are black. Below "artful" is the text "visual arts initiative" in a simple, black, sans-serif font.

artful
visual arts initiative

This poem is property of Mia Colabella, any reproduction or use of this poem without express permission would violate copyright.